This day called proudly as "International Women's day" celebrates the unique strength of women that is hard to find in the entire human existence. It's a global day and is celebrated in most parts of the world to take conscious cognizance of the unprecedented achievements of women, irrespective of which section of the society they belong to. The International women's day calls for the equality of women in the society where they are often not given that right that, she actually deserves. It is a time for reflection of how far women have come, advocacy for what is still needed, and action to continue breaking down barriers. Signifying justice and dignity, the color purple has become an international symbol for women since the origination of purple, green, and white as a symbol of women's equality from the Women's Social and Political Union in the UK in 1908. Thus this year to celebrate this day the theme was kept as Purple and White.

Aesthetic decorations were kept at the entrance with posters of renowned female celebrities. Over the decades, so many women have made outstanding contributions towards human spaceflight and the world has gained valuable insights from their initiatives. Women who came from an ordinary background, but knew how to dream big and reach out for the stars. The decor was done with the Purple and White theme and the contributions of women personalities from all the fields were honored as their posters were kept as a part of the decor. Along with this the committee gave chocolates to all the teachers and faculty as a token of appreciation. The decorations seemed to be the heart of this International Women's Day Celebration.

There was also a story writing competition named #beingawomanengineer held wherein the participants were asked to share inspiring stories. The best among them, written by Leena Shinde from TE Computers was selected and posted on the official media handles of the committee and will be felicitated with a certificate and interesting prizes. Overall the efforts of the committee were paid off as International Women's Day was a great success. This day was also a start to Women's Week Celebration as the committee planned various events for the upcoming week.
